DEDICATED TO...

The one to whom we dedicate this, our work, is a man whose temperament and interests exactly coincide with his position as the spiritual leader of Fairfield's student body. Fr. Joseph W. Murphy, S.J. counsels many in whom he shows a deep interest and affection. As a Theology teacher, he presents the picture of a man strongly imbued with a knowledge and love of his subject. As the director of the Sodality of Our Lady, he shows himself as a man devoted to the spirituality of St. Ignatius and to the Blessed Virgin. As a priest, he administers the sacraments to many, showing true zeal for the salvation of souls. As a man, he is ever-ready with friendship for all who come in contact with him. He is an exemplar of the priesthood, always interested, seeking to help all, giving truly Christian counsel.

For all these attributes and for the close association we have had with him, we are extremely grateful. It is for this reason that we, the Manor Staff and the Class of 1959, humbly salute him.

Come, Holy Ghost, who ever One
Reignest with Father and with Son,
It is the hour, our souls possess
With Thy full flood of holiness.

Let flesh, and heart, and lips, and mind,
Sound forth our witness to mankind;
And love light up our mortal frame,
Till others catch the living flame.

Now to the Father, to the Son,
And to the Spirit, Three in One,
Be praise and thanks and glory given
By men on earth, by Saints in heaven.

Seniors

Perhaps my semblance might deceive the truth,
That I to manhood am arrived so near,
And inward ripeness doth much less appear,
That some more timely-happy spirits indu'th.

Yet be it less or more, or soon or slow,
It shall be still in strictest measure even
To that same lot, however mean or high,

Toward which Time leads me, and the will of Heaven,
All is, if I have grace to use it so,
As ever in my great Task-master's eye.

It was wet in Bermuda, too!

History of the Class of 1959

The phrase "alumnus of Fairfield University" not only denotes an individual who has attained a degree of perfection in a liberal education in the arts and sciences, but it also has an unique significance. To the University graduates it is a source of retrospection and memories—the faculty, lectures, classmates, and activities. It centralizes the satisfaction, the joys, and the disappointments that are encompassed in a college education. Each member of the Class of 1959 will enthusiastically reminisce about special episodes and moments in his college life which he shared with his classmates. These events are the basis of our narrative, their spontaneity its life.

Perhaps it was with less than cheery optimism that we made our way to Xavier Hall that first registration day. Yet our wills were strengthened by the wealth of welcomes we received from the men in the red blazers who greeted us. And we needed stamina to survive the myriad blank forms that would be served upon us throughout that week, and those costly jaunts to the book store. If we had failed to realize that college was an expensive proposition before, the figure on the cash register quickly enlightened us. There was a double sense of newness that September day, for it not only meant registration for 270 freshmen, but it also marked the opening of the first campus dormitory, Loyola Hall. One hundred and twenty of our number were to be treated there to the pleasures of home and campus restrictions during that year. We received much advice during our initiation days to college life, but we mainly remembered the juniors tips on what local spirit establishments would serve those under twenty-one. Orientation week quickly expired, and though we had our own ideas on education we were introduced to another—the Ratio Studiorium. We were becoming "intellectuals," so we thought, but we soon discovered how little we knew after Mr. D's first history test. Its repercussions were scared collegians and more diligent study. Our first elections were held in October, and we selected Bob Scanlon, Dave Drongoski, Steve Poor, and Bob Perez as the freshmen representatives to the Student Council. In the Resident Council our interests were furthered by Jimmy Breen and Desi Sullivan.

What is college without some social activity? . . . so we had our first class dance that Fall in Berchmans Hall. During the following weeks we were the men of the hour at dances given by Manhattanville, New Rochelle, Albertus Magnus, St. Joseph's . . . we were having a great time. However we soon learned that our adeptness in "Blue Moon" wasn't helping us in our bluebooks. Many in our class quickly began to distinguish themselves in extracurricular activities and sports. Jack Toal became photographer and Larry Lessing, Al Bobay, and Dick Guagnini, writers for the Stag. The Business Club, the Education Club, the N.F.C.C.S. and the C.I.S.L. were all having successful meetings and programs due to the response and competence of their freshmen members. In sports the University harriers were augmented by the running ability of John Cuskley, Bob McCarthy, and Fred Schwitz.

Winter arrived on campus with its stinging wind and frigid walk to classes. Many times, however, the appreciation of the warmth of the classroom was chilled by the numerous surprise quizzes. Nevertheless it was the two weeks prior to the Christmas vacation that were the most hectic—the bluebooks were as numerous as department store Santa Clauses. Indeed that last class day in December was most welcomed as fatigued students flocked to the "New Haven" and the Merrit Parkway for the journey home for the holidays. The vacation with its parties, area club dances, and writing term papers passed quickly and we were soon back on campus for the last stretch. Lights burned late through January as every possible moment was used to review doubtful material and cram for the finals. The midterms came and with them went some of our number; yet Tom Callan, Ed Chopskie, John Croake, Frank Sullivan, and Pat Waide gained recognition for themselves by being named to the Dean's List at the end of their first semester in college. Our introduction to a college social weekend was the Mid-Winter Carnival in February. It was opened by a formal dance in the Ritz Ballroom where we enjoyed the melodious music of Pat Dorn and his orchestra. After the "prom" we attended the Vet's Club party and danced into the early hours of the morning. Then in the afternoon we escorted our dates to the Jazz Concert given by the "Stag Stompers" which was followed that evening by an informal dance in Xavier. Monday morning gave ample testimony to a tremendous week-end as few of us had conquered our weariness or recuperated from our illnesses to attend class.

The experience of one semester behind us, we quickly adapted ourselves to furthering our intellectual progress. We attended fewer dances and quickly commenced research for our term papers. However we took time out to cheer the freshman basketball team to victory as it was compiling a praiseworthy record, led by high scorers Frank McGowan and Mike Mullen. March was an eventful month for our class both on and off campus. Many of us represented Fairfield at the C.I.S.L. in Hartford and we were equally active in the Mariology and Industrial Relations workshops of the N.F.C.C.S. on campus. Fairfield marched for the first time in the New York St. Patrick's Day Parade and we had a good tension breaker by parading and enjoying the festivities which followed.

When we returned from the Easter recess, Spring had arrived at Fairfield. During the afternoon students could be seen playing softball, basketball, or strolling around the campus enjoying the flowering shrubs or the encompassing view of Long Island Sound. The Intellectuals?

Spring of '56 also marked the formation of the Ignatian Council of the Knights of Columbus on campus. In April we elected our class officers for our sophomore year. Desi Sullivan was elected president, and Dick Cormier, Phil Guerin, and Randy Harper were voted to the other offices. Though it may be a long, long time from May to December, it was not so long between December and May. Then we challenged the finals, the end of our freshman year at Fairfield.

In September we returned from our sabbatical, and just as brick was being added to brick to build up our campus surroundings, so also we assumed new courses in the development of the foundation given us as freshmen. Ours was the knowhow and brashness of sophomores, and we somehow managed to be the first to arrive at "Sully's" and the last to leave on Friday nights. We had preferences on whose dances we would make a special effort to attend, and perhaps it was with vanity that we made a daily check of Fr. Lyons' mail list. In late September Steve Poor, one of our representatives to the Student Council, was elected the recording secretary of that campus organization. The Fall also marked the formation of the first intercollegiate tennis team at Fairfield, with "racketeers" John Cuskley, Larry Lessing, and Ed Sittnick, our contribution to the Fairfield netmen. The old political cracker barrel debates were revived during October as we recommended the pros and dismissed the cons of our favorite political candidates. With the disappearance of the green veneered arena known as the ping-pong table from Xavier, many of us made more frequent visits to the library, even if only to gaze at Fr. Small's mounted sailfish. We dared to render our opinions and advice to the Administration on whether the A.B. degree should require Latin or not; we appreciated its value by their silent response. From Fr. Rooney our class learned by trial and error the difference between the Roman Catholic Church and the Catholic Church, and in our bluebooks the History of Modern Europe was being rewritten.

Fairfield became a member of the newly formed Tri-State Basketball League in November, and Red Healy, Mike Mullen, Frank McGowan, and Dave Toomey, all received berths on the Stags' cagers. Time was at a premium in December as the numerous exams found us constantly studying. Finally that magic word "vacation" became a reality and weary students journeyed home for the Christmas holidays. Many of us helped Uncle Sam deliver the mail, and the festivities of the area clubs kept our social life a whirl. It was with eggnog-tinted eyes that we returned to finish term papers and book reviews, even if they would take until three or four o'clock in the morning to complete (for Fr. Rooney they did). January came to a close in the same manner it had in the previous year, the semester finals. Some of us were disappointed but there were five new additions to the Dean's List from our class in the person of Nelson Dion, John Guman, Randy Harper, John Lanyi, and Jim Supp. In February we attended our second Carnival weekend. The formal dance was held at the Longshore Country Club, and the music was again provided by Pat Dorn. Missing, however, were the traditional ice carvings which had been eliminated by the economical Carnival Committee, nevertheless the dance and the parties which followed insured a most enjoyable time. On Saturday we were treated in the afternoon to the "Dixieland" music of the "Brunotes" and in the evening to an interpretation of modern jazz by the "Six Sounds." After a concert given by the University Glee Club on Sunday, another wonderful carnival came to an end. Later in the month our class received special recognition for its enthusiasm and participation in extra-curricular activities. Bob Kaulbach, Bill Lavery, Larry Lessing, and Dick Cummings were all appointed assistant editors on the Stag, and Bob Hirtle and Bob Kaulbach received chairmanships of committees in the C.I.S.L. In March our newly formed Drama Club represented the New England Province of the Jesuits at the Fordham University Dramatic Festival. The club's presentation of "The Game of Chess" in which Jack Kelly portrayed the footman, was reviewed the best in the festival by the panel of judges. With the arrival of Lent we all tightened our belts a notch. We departed however from the penitential spirit to march in the New York St. Patrick's Day Parade and to celebrate later as uninvited guests of the Dixie Hotel. March, with all its activities, departed from our campus more like a lion than a lamb. Fairfield was host to workshops of the N.F.C.C.S. in which we were ably represented by Fran Marcellino, John Croake, and

Ah, sweet memories!

Larry Washburn. Also on campus through the efforts of Ted Combs and others, there was formed the St. Cecelia Academy to further the appreciation of classical music among the student body. Soon after we were journeying home for the Easter recess, contemplating the recently passed resolution of the Student Council which limited the number of activities in which a student could participate.

When we returned from the vacation we seemed to be more occupied than ever. Besides toeing the mark in the classroom many of us were vocalizing with the Glee Club in concerts throughout Connecticut and Massachusetts. Others were polishing up on their lines and cues for the Dramatic Society's presentation of "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial"; and it was a first rate production that the thespians gave at the Stratford Shakespearean Theatre. The performance of Dave Barrett was excellent and stellar portrayals were also given by John Kelly, Bill Margiotta, Joe DeCicco, Jim Maher, and Frank Smyth. In sports Jack Redway, Al Emanuelli, and Jack Wood were exhibiting their baseball prowess with the Fairfield "nine," and in track Tony Champ set the University track record for the low hurdles. Some of us were elected to leadership in campus clubs and organizations, and our class was especially honored with the election of Randy Harper as Grand Knight of the Ignatian Council. Besides our interest in studies and activities we also were concerned in selecting able men to serve as our class officers and Student Council representatives for our junior year. After the voting the ballots revealed that Bob Healy was elected our President, and Jim Maher, Larry Kelly, and Ray O'Keefe our choices to fill out the slate. For the Council representatives we preferred Brian Boland, Randy Harper, John Croake, Bill Lavery, and John Redgate. Soon our classes for the semester were over, and we demonstrated our knowledge or lack of it in the finals—the end of an eventful year, and of another phase in our collegiate education.

Two years after our welcome to the green fields of Fairfield County, our turn came to greet new Stags and their parents. Under the impetus of Phil Guerin, blazer-clad Junior sponsors shepherded new registrants from building to building, offering advice, hospitality and friendship. The two yellow brick giants, which we had seen rising from the ground, stood ready for occupancy. Canisius and Gonzaga seemed fit companions indeed for Loyola.

Dancing girls in a variety of moods and figures welcomed us to the realms of philosophy. Seventy-two disciples of drama picked rough sledding; accountants sweated out many long work sheets; those in the attic spent more and more time over lab tables.

A quiet man took over the dorms and residents were entertained by bulletins and Saturday night movies, Asian flu slowed activity and stopped some teachers for the first time in many years. After Jim Maher and Sam Mowad had split the Logic Specimen pool, Rene Descartes said "Cogito, ergo sum" and we began our study of truth.

Intramural tournaments attracted many: the Chollies under Tad Dowd won football honors. Shades of Xavier Cafe! Crowds milled around ping-pong tables once again. Bowling took up cold weather slack.

Young Republicans, Taftites and moderns, headed by men like Vin Babuscio, Loren Carstenson and Dick Chokas strengthened their ties with the state organization. Bill Lavery, Young Democrat prexy, actively presented a variety of speakers during election time.

When we get to Bermuda

Red Healy moved into high gear in our year-long series of events with a Fall Dance, at which Don Zucco entertained.

The Resident Council vitalized itself with a campus Glee Club concert and Christmas Party. Due to the efforts of our Student Council rep John Redgate many of us left early for postal work. Pete York and Tom Groonel supplied Fairfield homes with Christmas trees and such.

After Holiday Season we finished term papers, got dates for the coming Carnival and prepped for term exams, particularly the Great Guess. Most guessed well and January in a classroom lost its onus—as a matter of fact the Dean's List swelled to unheard of proportions.

After all that, guess who got the ring?

Phil Swanson aided strongly by Walt Naedele, took over the Stag office. Israeli-Arab speakers assailed our mid-Eastern notions under the sponsorship of Bob Hirtle, Public Affairs Chief.

Came Carnival time, complete with snow. Too much as a matter of fact. Cars were piled up that couldn't be moved for days. During the weekend the Vets Club, under Dick Cormier, and the Juniors had parties which helped the fun along.

Our activities led us far and wide. In Hartford, Bob Kaulbach, State Treasurer for CISL led a successful delegation of veteran politicos like Mike James, Jim Breen, and Phil Rielly. Later, in Boston, John Croake, who had conducted the Family Life Commission during the year was chosen to head the twenty-five school New England Region of the NFCCS. Ed Chopskie and Ralph DeGruttola were among those to initiate the Canisius Academy to study advanced theology. Aquinas Academy members returned from a meeting at Barnard to regale Cosmology classes with tales of adversaries incarnate.

Bermuda Boosters culminated their efforts as Spring burgeoned on the campus. The Big Trip at Easter was a reality and a thoroughly enjoyable one at that.

Banquet and beach time came along as clubs and students enjoyed the last days before the exams. In May came the presentation of Time Limit with Larry Washburn and Pat DeCicco in the lead. The Junior Weekend, headed by Jack Toal, was built around the production. Enjoying the cool, clear weekend we toured the countryside, picnicking, partying and proposing. Billy Butterfield and George Haux provided music for dancing and song.

We studied too!

After hot exam rooms in late May we met and mingled with Weston's oral examiners. It seemed impossible to prepare a year's matter in philosophy but we fared well on the whole and turned peacefully homeward from the green fields.

Cheery greetings rang through the welkin, cars parked in lots forgotten over a long, hot summer, and Fairfield's returning Seniors held a welcome stag at Sokol #193. Phrases like "Say there, Immanuel Kant" and "agere sequitur esse" filtered out classroom windows. In October a picnic and dance continued our social calendar. Larry Kelly provided refreshments under chairman Des Sullivan.

Our classmates headed practically all the activities. Randy Harper led the Student Council and Jack Toal the Manor staff. J. C. Kelly topped the officer list of the Glee Club. The Sodality was prefected by Jack Seery who led delegations to many off-campus meetings that Fall. The Public-Affairs Club under Bob Pelton, began a lecture series on foreign affairs. Mike McDonnell and Gene Purcell were chosen to run the dorm council's activities for the year. Pete Negri's Business Club dinners were attended more heavily by worried Seniors.

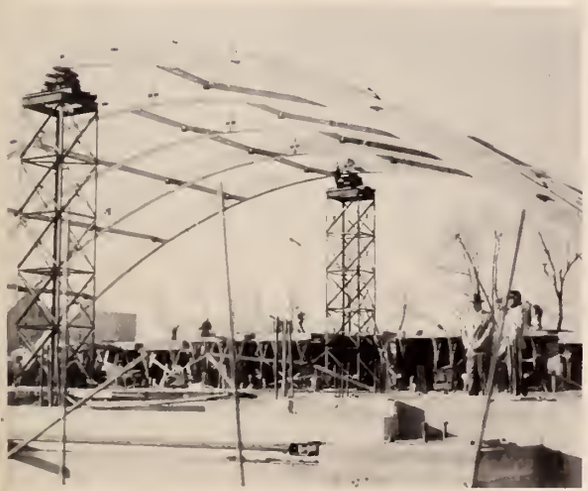
Getting started

Going up



Taking shape

The Dramatic Society presented "Teahouse of the August Moon" at Notre Dame Theatre with Don Zucco as student director. Tom Morrison and Pat DeCicco had the male leads. Dave Barrett and Larry Washburn, both drama veterans, supplied ample humor in the well attended performances. Many had worked hard during the autumn to prepare the necessary sets. Among them were Jim Moran and Joe Scanlon, master carpenters, and Jim Betts, painter. After the show a lively party, hosted by Mike James, was held by the class at Woodland Grove.

During December we honored the "Little Earps," football champs led by Buzz Garrity. While we were gone on vacation Jesuit Deans plotted on the campus. Upon our return, however, we found nothing unusual, just the last minute battle of the books.

After a hard series in which we suffered some casualties, we enjoyed the traditional Winter Carnival. Paul Kane's engineering and work turned out a very successful affair, enjoyed by many of our mates. Dave Toomey's date was chosen queen and reigned over a happy week-end with all the trimmings. Larry Elgart provided good music at the formal, chaired by George McGauley. Afterward many formally-clad students attended Charlie McCann's party. The affair was rounded out by the musical efforts of Kai Windig and the Pennsylvania Six-Pence.

Physical improvements continued on the campus as the gym looked more complete. In Xavier, the industrial management lab neared completion.

Final preparations for the Bermuda trip were made and many again enjoyed the sun and surf. For the rest, Fairfield beach sufficed for the last part of the Spring Semester.

As graduation approached we tied up the trailing strings of our college bundle and readied ourselves for our final push with exams and orals. With the last bit of perspiration wiped from our brows, we fully entered into Senior Week activities with friends, close because of four years of strong associations.

Finally, after jokes and reminiscences we took our diplomas and went our ways, hoping to meet again in the near future, having finally come under the aegis of the Alumni Association.

Fairfield, see the stag with cross of gold,
Rears once more its undefeated head.

"Through faith, unto total truth," our cry.
Swells, from the sea to spire and sky.
Hear, alma mater, hear,

HONOR

It could well be said that the members of the class of 1959 who were appointed by the President of the University to membership in the Fairfield University Honor Society, not only came to Fairfield, but arrived. They are the seniors who have combined scholastic excellence with distinguished participation in extra-curricular activities. Membership in the society is one of the highest accolades that the University awards to

In establishing the Society, the University gives the student added inducement for academic achievement, and encourages greater interest in extra-curricular activities. Requirements for membership are clearly specified as to scholastic average and activity points and, in addition, the eligible seniors must be recommended by the dean.

Sodality of Our Lady

The Sodality is not just an extra-curricular activity but rather, an association dedicated to a definite way of life. This plan of life embodies a three-fold goal in making its members exemplary Catholics: sanctification of self, sanctification of others, and thinking with the Church. It is this three-fold aim which makes the Sodality unique because it provides its members with a definite set of rules to follow Christ in the world.

Since a college sodality is transitional, or more precisely, a preparatory stage for the future, the Sodality at Fairfield is dedicated to forming men of outstanding character and leadership for their role after graduation in parish, professional, or cana sodalities. Just as there are two sides to the one coin, there are likewise two aspects to the true sodalist. He is not merely one who diligently follows religious exercises with no worldly contact, nor is he a Catholic expending his efforts on all-encompassing activity with no program for his inner perfection. The real sodalist is a Catholic who possesses the union of a dynamic interior and apostolic life; which makes him exemplary, which makes him a leader among the laity and in the Church.

Celebrating benediction at Shrub Oak.

Under the spiritual direction of its moderator, Father Joseph W. Murphy, S.J., the Fairfield Sodality has developed into, according to the National Director of Sodalities, "one of the outstanding college sodalities in the East." It not only has an effective interior life program for its members, but also through its twelve committees, a most active apostolate on and off the campus. In addition, the men of the Fairfield Sodality during the past academic year were most active in participating at the Sodality Congress of the Lay Apostolate in New York, and the Sodality Convention in Detroit, Michigan. Through these conventions and meetings with members of other colleges' and nursing schools' sodalities, the Fairfield men have helped others and acquired new ideas to make Sodality in high school, college, and in the laity, the plan of every layman.

There were many outstanding members of the class of 1959 who were prominent representatives of a real sodalist. As they leave Fairfield they bring with them into graduate schools, the armed services, and the professions, vital examples of witnesses for Christ.

The Fairfield University Student Council is composed of twenty-three students elected by their classmates "to determine the non-academic policies of the Student Association". Actually, the Student Council concerns itself with services to the student body as a whole, with the extra-curricular and co-curricular activities on campus, and acts as an intermediary between the administration and the student body.

In its extremely wide range of activities, the Council controls such matters as school blazers, the annual Winter Carnival and intercollegiate dance, the dispersal of Student Association funds, the chartering and supervision of student organizations and the supervision of all class or student body elections.

To deal effectively with a student body numbering over one thousand and making up more than thirty campus and intercollegiate organizations, the Council's members must be informed men capable of carrying out their various functions with a minimum of wasted time and effort. In addition to the class presidents, who are ex officio members of the Council, its members are usually the most able and respected members of the respective classes.

This year, Council President Randy Harper and the seven other seniors who led the Council and headed its committees, continued to increase the efficiency and efficacy of the Council's quiet but important work.

Resident Council

The Resident Council was organized to co-ordinate campus life in a manner which befits the traditions of Fairfield. As a legislative body the Executive Board of the Council is composed of eleven delegates and four officers elected from the campus dormitories. Under the leadership of its president, Mike McDonnell, the assembly was most active in promoting and stimulating spiritual, social, and recreational activities for the dormitory students. In addition to organizing and outfitting the cheerleading squad, the Council also sponsored numerous rallies, bonfires and motorcades to the intercollegiate basketball games.

A highlight of the Council's social activities was the annual Christmas party with its accompanying decorations, music, entertainment, and movie. The assembly also sponsored the University Glee Club in a concert for the resident students' parents on Washington's Birthday, and completed its social activities with its annual, on campus block party and dance in the late Spring.

He can really chop now.

Glee Club

The Glee Club had its most eventful season in 1958-59. In addition to giving more concerts than in any previous year, the club had the chance to display its musical talent in five states. Its performance schedule began early in December with the annual combined concert with St. Joseph's College. Later in the season, the "Men in Red" traveled to Albertus Magnus and Newton Colleges to hold joint concerts with their respective glee clubs. The high-light of the past season, however, was the Glee Club's participation in the Catholic College Intercollegiate Glee Club Festival early in April. The competition was held under the auspices of the Scranton University Glee Club, and featured five other colleges besides Fairfield.

The eighty-five man club had the opportunity this season to sing at Shadowbrook for the first time, and was also warmly received at "premiere" joint concerts with the glee clubs of the College of Mount Saint Vincent and Saint Elizabeth College. Although the Club traveled extensively, the organization did not slight its local devotees. It performed in no less than eleven concerts throughout Connecticut, giving its final performance of the season at Hartford's Bushnell Auditorium.

The University Glee Club had a diversified though co-ordinated repertoire which ran the gamut from Bach to Rogers and Hart. Interspersed with the chorale numbers were the comic and inventive antics of the fourteen-member Campus Minstrels and close harmony ballads by the Bensonians.

Since its inception eleven years ago, the glee club has flourished under the guiding hands of its music director Simon Harak, and faculty moderator Rev. John P. Murray, S. J. The outstanding achievements of the '58-'59 season must ultimately be attributed to the knowing and disciplined spirit of these two men.

ACT I

Scene: Xavier Cafeteria of Fairfield University 1956, Father Mullin and Cantandella engaged in conversation.

CATANDELLA. Father, what do you think our chances are of establishing a drama society at Fairfield?

FATHER MULLIN. Hmm . . . for purposes of increasing community culture and that of the University? I think it's a good idea, and with a man like Bob Emerich in the English department, I think it's a better idea. He has quite a background in theater you know. President of an off-Broadway group, Pygmalion Productions . . . NBC-TV . . . Master of Fine Arts in Drama . . .

CANTANDELLA. I think he's our man, Father. Does he have the experience necessary to direct a college drama society?

FATHER MULLIN. Oh, yes! His knowledge of the theater extends in all directions: make-up, wardrobe, set-construction, just to mention a few.

CATANDELLA. There he is getting a cup of coffee, Father. Let's ask him.

Scene: Backstage at the Notre Dame Theater, November 21, 1958, the opening night of "Teahouse of the August Moon." Father Mullin, Mr. Emerich, cast, production staff, stage crew, making last preparations and adjustments.

FATHER MULLIN. Could we have your attention please? Mr. Emerich wishes to say something to you.

MR. EMERICH. Gentlemen, before the curtain goes up, I have a few words to say in regard to you, the Society, and especially the members who are seniors. When I was approached by Father Mullin and Ken Catandella three years ago to be your director, I was a little reluctant in accepting the duties and responsibilities that are attached to such a position.

Three years ago we ventured our first production, THE CAINE MUTINY COURT MARTIAL at the Shakespeare Festival Theater. We had a few juniors and seniors in that cast but the nucleus of the original society was composed of the present senior members who were then sophomores. We relied heavily on acting, avoiding much of the technical aspects of a theatrical production because it was an experiment. When the last curtain came down, Father Mullin and I realized we had a society that was going to be a credit to the name of Fairfield University, and that we had talent that would be with us for two more years, namely the class of '59.

They contributed largely to the Society's next production TIME LIMIT both in acting talent and production management. It was a greater success than the CAINE. Tonight we have reached a theatrical peak, so to speak, in putting on THE TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON, and once again the class of '59 has contributed the bulk of the actors, the production chiefs, and the production crews. We've worked hard on this since school opened in September. Rehearsals have been long and tedious. The production staff has spent long, laborious hours in constructing and painting the set at Southwell Hall.

We have all worked hard for the same goal: to bring good theater to people who enjoy good theater. And what is 'good theater'? 'Good theater' is entertainment. We certainly have entertainment to offer in our show.

The class of '59 has been the nucleus of a society which started three short years ago and has grown to be one of the most versatile activities on Fairfield's campus. Without them, the Drama Society could not have fared the great success it has had in all its enterprises. (Looks at watch) Okay, five minutes 'til curtain!

The Stag

The STAG accomplished two things during the last year in its role of presenting the growth of the University to the reading public. It maintained a full coverage of the important occurrences and it developed a treatment of those events which blended color, depth, and interest into what were at first hand, many cold facts.

The college paper became the exclusive news source for the announcement of the cast of the Spring drama, the full details of the then-proposed gym, for the fact that the Eastern Seaboard Deans planned to convene here, for the announcement of the Winter Carnival Queen finalists. As the objective evaluator of campus issues, it presented complete accounts of things merely rumored. When the Aquinas Academy tangled with a group of skeptics at a Barnard College gathering, or when the tuition increase seemed to some uneven, the paper could be relied upon to present the accurate situation. The red blazer issue was resolved because of the manner of presentation afforded both parties. As the student voice of criticism, moreover, the STAG petitioned for a student closed retreat, laughed at the Unsilent Generation, and called for a language major; it blasted the baseball team when that outfit sat on its hands, and it cried for some unity from the basketball team. More penetrating criticism often came clothed in the garments of satire.

And in all, the STAG produced a physically competent paper. Policy held the editorial page to be solely for considered judgment on prime issues, the feature page to be light and entertaining, page five to cover campus news more closely, page seven to hold by-lined columns, the sports pages to be as ample in content as the front page. Why this? So that the students might become aware of what the University was accomplishing, what it was becoming. But behind every paper was the goal of creating a healthy self-awareness of Fairfield University.

New Frontiers

Editors-in-Chief: J. Annunziata, A. Einhorn

New Frontiers, the literary magazine of Fairfield University, was founded in 1955, the Marian Year. Its founders recognized the need for a medium to voice original creative writing done by the student body. Since its inception it has grown both in size and scope. Though its main intention is to publish outstanding literary works, it has readily accepted original and provocative papers in all fields of thought.

The magazine is published twice a year, but the recent increase in acceptable material seems to prophesy more frequent publication. During this past year the off-campus circulation of New Frontiers surpassed four hundred, with a copy of the magazine being found in most Eastern college libraries. Another noteworthy event during 1958-59 was the recording of the magazine in the Library of Congress. Under the organizational and competent leadership of its editor-in-chief Arthur Einhorn, all deadlines were met, the position of business manager created, and outside circulation of the magazine increased about one-third.

From its origin, Father Bonn has been the motivating and directive force in the success of the magazine. Together with Mr. Riel, he has brought New Frontiers to a position of eminence among student activities. The increasing interest and participation which the student body has shown in its workings, will enable the addition of more departments and will allow a greater number of students to participate in the editing and publication of Fairfield's contribution to the humanities.

Bellarmine Debating Society

The 1958-59 debate season proved to be unique for the Bellarmine debaters, as the season was characterized with innovations it had never undergone before. The majority of the society officers were sophomores, with Jim Bigham and Bill Margiotta being the only seniors. This, however, provided excellent training ground for the underclassmen; they would be well equipped for their final two years of debate.

Fairfield began its season with a "Mock Debate" on the home campus with Good Counsel College of White Plains. The proposition was resolved that: Women make Better Drivers Than Men, and Fairfield defended the affirmative to make it more interesting. A third innovation affected the debate scene nationally. 1958-59 saw a switch from individual school debating to extensive debating on the tournament level. Fairfield participated in tournies at Brown, New Rochelle, Barnard College, Brooklyn College, and the N.F.C.C.S. Forensics Tournament. The college's growing reputation also drew invitations from Harvard and M.I.T. which unfortunately had to be declined because of previous commitments.

In 1958, Fr. Nickerson became affiliated with the Society in the capacity of Coach. He concentrated on the freshman debaters in particular, and Fr. Donoghue, Moderator, concentrated on the experienced members. This year, as others, was marked with a high spirit of co-operation among the debaters, the Student Council, the faculty, and the Administration. The Student Council was instrumental in financing some of the Society's expensive ventures, a co-operation which is necessary to train debaters to represent Fairfield University both at home and on other college campuses.

"We believe that man has natural rights which come from God and not the state."

This declaration from the credo of our alma mater provided the subject for the discussion and annual symposium held by the Aquinas Academy this past scholastic year. The members selected this topic because of the threat of secularism and materialism to the well-being of modern society. It was further believed that only through a study of the Natural Law can one perceive the inalienable rights that are due each man because of the dignity of the nature given him by the Creator of all nature, God Almighty. Thus it was that the Academy studied the Natural Law as an ontological entity from which all human rights are derived, in contradistinction to the opinion of the moral positivists, and the philosophies of Hobbes, Spinoza, and the American jurist, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Membership in the Aquinas Academy is limited to seniors who have shown interest and ability in philosophical studies during their junior year, and who desire advanced work in philosophical discussions beyond that attained in the classroom. Confirming the idea that the study of philosophy is the talisman of the Jesuit college graduate, the members of the Aquinas Academy have devoted themselves to this "love of wisdom."

Canisius Academy

Moderator, Reverend E. Hogan, S.J. and P. Guerin, President.

In the Spring of 1958, Fr. Edward Hogan, S.J., organized the Canisius Academy to promote a lively interest in theological problems and topics among the top upperclassmen. During its first full year of existence the Academy presented its members a very comprehensive program. At its bi-monthly meetings current topics of interest in theology were discussed so that the Academy would contribute in a practical way to the understanding among its members of modern developments in theology. These topics ranged from the possibility of a Catholic president in America to the apparent conflict between science and theology.

As its main project for the academic year the club presented in the Spring a symposium to the student body on the contributions of the late Pope Pius XII to theology. In this presentation the late Holy Father's pronouncements on medical ethics, peace and Mariology were analyzed for their theological value.

Although one of the newest of the undergraduate organizations, the Canisius Academy contributes actively to the intellectual life of the student on campus.

Public Affairs Club

R. Chokas, J. Grady, R. Capobianco, G. Tolme

It is the aim of this organization to promote interest in, and provide information on, contemporary political, social, and economic issues. The club was most active in this regard during 1958-59, sponsoring informative lectures by leading international personalities. Foremost among these guest speakers were Dr. Khatib of the Arab delegation to the United Nations, Dr. C. M. Chang of Nationalist China, and Dr. Basil Karp of the American Committee for a United Europe.

Besides the sponsoring of lectures, the Club aroused a keen interest in public affairs among the student body by opening the "Public Affairs Center" on campus. This meeting room was equipped with numerous informative pamphlets and articles which could be used as reference or retained for personal use by the students. Another principal activity of the club was the organizing of the annual mock election by the collegians in late October of their favorite political candidates for national and state office.

The club is not only interested in furthering among the students an active interest in public affairs, but it also aims to give the collegians the Catholic approach, where applicable, to the political, social, and economic issues of our modern society.

C.I.S.L.

The Connecticut Intercollegiate Student Legislature is an intercollegiate organization composed of eighteen delegates from each of the seventeen member colleges and universities of the State of Connecticut. The Senior and Junior delegates of each institution meet once a month during the scholastic year under the supervision of the Executive Committee; the remainder of the delegates make up the Exchange of Ideas Committee which discusses pertinent questions concerning the C.I.S L. and makes recommendations to the Executive Committee. Together the two groups are referred to as the Executive Council.

Each Spring the C.I.S.L. has its annual Mock Legislature in Hartford at which all eighteen delegates from each member institution are present. The delegates elect their own Speaker of the House, President of the Senate, and Majority Leaders of the respective houses. Following the election of officers, and through committee hearings and separate meetings of the House and Senate, the proposed bills from each college or university are considered by the delegates. This constitutes the substance of the remainder of the Mock Legislature week end.

The organization is dedicated to the purpose of furthering knowledge of the practical applications of legislation: i.e., the preliminary research required before the drafting of a bill; the proposing of the bill in committee and, if passed favorably, the proposing of the bill on the House and Senate floors. All the bills passed by the Mock Legislature are placed on the Governor's desk for his review.

The campus unit of the C.I.S.L. was headed during 1958-59 by Bob Kaulbach, who also was elected by the Mock Legislature as its Speaker of the House. Under his leadership Fairfield's delegation contributed in legislation and in organization to the success of the C.I.S.L. throughout the state.

National Federation

The National Federation of Catholic College Students is, in essence, exactly what its name states. It is the only united voice of Catholic college students in the country, and it is an organization devoted to promoting and co-ordinating common projects and activities between the member colleges. However, the most important function of the Federation is the preparing of its members, both intellectually and emotionally, for the task of lay leadership. This is accomplished through its commissions, which are organs designed to acquaint the student with his role in society and increase Catholic Action in the Lay Apostolate.

In the commissions' workshops ideas are exchanged through discussion and guest lectures, and a fuller realization of the layman's responsibility is made evident.

During 1958-59 the N.F.C.C.S. was very prominent on campus. For the third year the New England Regional President was from the Fairfield delegation and the Regional Publicity Director was also a Fairfield man. In October the N.F. held the Family Life-Liturgy workshop, one of the most enthusiastic of the Fall semester, on the Fairfield campus. The second workshop held at Fairfield during the academic year was the annual Forensics Festival in February. This workshop drew participants from the many Catholic colleges in New England who engaged in active discussion and competition on contemporary topics.

Through the untiring efforts of its regional president and campus delegates, the N.F.C.C.S. has assumed a leading position in Fairfield University's extra-curricular activities.

Besides being an integral part of the campus Public Affairs-International Relations Club, the Democratic Club is a member of the New England Intercollegiate Young Democrats, the Connecticut Collegiate Young Democrats, and the Connecticut State Young Democrats. The Club aims to give its members practical experience in electioneering: ringing doorbells, sending political letters, and working on Election Day for various local candidates, and thus be a vital supplement to the political theory given in the classroom. In addition to its electioneering activities the Club also brings distinguished state and national political candidates and officials to the University campus to give their views and opinions on various important government issues. One of the most prominent speakers sponsored by the organization during the academic year was United States Senator Thomas Dodd. Under the leadership of its diligent and capable president Bill Lavery, the campus Democrats have instilled in the student body the importance and need of our two party system of government.

The Fairfield University Young Republican Club was organized during the Eisenhower Presidential election campaign of 1956. The purpose of the organization is to instruct the student body in the American two-party system of government, and to give them an opportunity to participate in that system by actively supporting the Republican candidates for public office.

Each year the Young Republican Club extends invitations to Republican politicians to speak on the campus. Off campus, the members of the organization help in the municipal, state, and national elections, both in the Town of Fairfield and in the City of Bridgeport. Many of the members also participate in Republican activities in their respective home towns, not only in the State of Connecticut, but also in New York, New Jersey, and Massachusetts.

The Young Republican Club is associated with the National Federation of Young Republican Clubs, the Young Republican Clubs of Connecticut, and the Connecticut Collegiate Young Republican Clubs. These organizations provide many interesting social activities during the year. Since its inception Fairfield University has had a seat on the Executive Board of the Collegiate group and has made its contribution to the development of the Republican Party within the state.

Knights of Columbus

The Ignatian Council of the Knights of Columbus was organized on campus in April of 1956. Since that time the organization has grown into a dynamic fellowship of Catholic men through the guidance of its chaplain, Father McPeake and Advisor, Mr. Pitt.

Under the leadership of its Grand Knight, Dino Genga, the "Knights" have become most prominent in their activities and undertakings. Among the Council's noteworthy successes have been the blood donation drives, the essay writing contest, the collection of sporting goods for the orphans in Italy, the Red Cross charity basketball game, and the post-prom Mid-Winter Carnival party.

Indeed the scope of these activities indicates the progressiveness and diligence of the campus Knights of Columbus.

"Who's the speaker at the dinner meeting tonight, Pete?" Such queries, and the interest which is inevitably aroused in the questioner when he hears the answer, have been a prime factor in contributing to the success that the Business Club enjoys at Fairfield.

The Business Club functions as a group trying to augment the learning of the classroom with a bit of social rapport. Through its dinner meetings it gives its members the opportunity to meet professors and leaders in business on a social basis. These meetings, however, are but one of the myriad activities of the organization. The Club, open to membership for all business majors, has given the many students who are members, varied and interesting outlets with which to complement their classroom knowledge. Worthy of note is the 'Advisor,' a newsletter written and put out by members, containing articles on industry, finance, economics, marketing, and general business. Also there are the various committees: Statistics, which during the past year completed a national survey of industrial and business firms on current business conditions and the opportunities available for 1959's graduates; Publicity, which seeks to further the public relations of the Club; Entertainment, which arranges the details for its social events; and Speakers, which contacts and arranges for on-and off-campus speakers from the various fields of business and industry.

Because of the nature of the Club and its activity, it is hard to conceive of any organization on campus which better prepares socially and professionally, intelligent and competent graduates for their departure from the University.

Mendel Club

The Mendel Club during the 1958-59 academic year celebrated its twelfth anniversary as an undergraduate activity. Besides its seniority in age, the organization boasts of one of the largest memberships of any of the collegiate clubs on campus It is the purpose of the club to supplement the knowledge obtained in the biology curriculum through timely papers on particular biological topics, and by movies on various operations and advances in medicine.

This goal was realized during the past year through the papers presented by the members at the weekly meetings and the many related films that were shown. The club was also the host to several doctors and other professional men, who lectured to the organization on the problems and opportunities of their respective fields. Another most important activity of the club was the publication of its own journal "The Nucleus." This paper provided its members with an excellent source of information on the new horizons being attained in medicine and other related fields. In the late Spring the organization presented its annual symposium on the adrenal gland and completed its student activities with the annual banquet and the presentation of the club's gift to the University's Biology Department.

Math-Physics Club

The underlying purpose of this organization is to unite Mathematics and Physics majors into a social organization for reasons of fraternity and scientific pursuits. This two-fold purpose was most successfully realized during the past academic year under the directions of the club's moderator, Father Ring and its president, Bob Mensik.

Since the club's members are continually seeking to advance their knowledge of the sciences, several tours were arranged throughout the year enabling the members to associate the principles learned in the classroom with practical applications. Two noteworthy tours were the club's visit to the Perkins-Elmer Co. which is engaged in the manufacturing of precision optical instruments, and the tour of the American Physical Society where the latest applications in physics were unveiled. In addition to the intellectual functions, the club was equally successful socially. Foremost among these events were the annual clam bake, the newly organized Christmas stag party and the annual banquet in the Spring.

Although this organization doesn't have the opportunity to reach the desirable number in membership due to the relatively few Mathematics and Physics majors in the University, its activities have nevertheless been most successful. This smooth operation of every function resulted from the unity and common interest of its members, and the willingness of every member to co-operate wholeheartedly in every undertaking of the club.

President Bob Mensik presides at club meeting.

Chemistry Club

As a Student Affiliate Chapter of the American Chemical Society, the Chemistry Club fosters professional spirit among its members and stimulates in them further interest in the many branches of chemistry. The organization's membership is composed primarily of Chemistry majors, however, other students with an interest in chemistry are permitted to become active members in the club.

Continuing a policy established in the past, the Chemistry Club during 1958-59 offered its members an opportunity to express their views on any phase of the chemistry field, either verbally at the weekly meetings, or in written form in the club's magazine, "The Condenser." Although major emphasis was placed on members' papers at meetings, this year the club also sponsored guest speakers and tours of neighboring chemical firms. A further highlight of the academic year's activities was the assistance given by its members in the preparation of pre-college students for the annual Southern Connecticut Science Fair.

The Chemistry Club has certainly heightened the enthusiasm of its members in their academic major and contributed intellectually and socially to the knowledge obtained in the classroom.

Senior Members: T. Kehoe, R. Widziewicz, J. Hudak, E. Sittnick, J. Supp

D. D'Alessio, Reverend T. E. McPeake, S.J.

With the advent of new frontiers into space, a new era of technology has been born, bringing with it the need for skilled scientists and mathematicians. This need has pierced the world of education, causing revaluation of present curricula so as to satisfy the thirst for scientific advancement which is plaguing the free world in its efforts to reign supreme in this new field of endeavor.

Meanwhile the voice of "the golden mean" raises its head to warn against overindulgence in one particular field, and to proclaim the need for study and perfection in other fields of knowledge which raise man's intellect to a study above the level of machinery and cosmical wonders, namely the arts and the social sciences.

Faced with these problems and their vast significance for the life of tomorrow's student, the Education Club considers such difficulties and formulates answers to them in the light of its Christian heritage and the living example of the "ratio studiorum."

Through group discussions and guest lectures, it has been the aim of this group to make the profession of teaching, its requirements, goals, and rewards, known to the entire student body. As a member of the Student Education Association of Connecticut, the club has brought the philosophy of the true Christian teacher to students of other geographic areas and other religious beliefs. Thus, in answer to the needs of modern society, the Education Club assists in the preparation of the future teacher by providing him with pre-professional training and association with his future colleagues in mutual discussions of the needs and importance of education in a space-age democracy.

St. Cecilia Academy

Members discuss agenda.

Since its inception, the St. Cecelia Academy has been devoted to the principle, that a knowledge of great music should be an integral part of a true education. The Academy has provided the student of Fairfield University with the opportunity of appreciating man through his music as well as through his written word. To secure the understanding and enjoyment of this fine art, informal weekly meetings were held at which a member of the club expounded on the life of a noteworthy composer, his major works, and some lesser known facet of his music. There was thus enjoyment for those who were interested in the music itself, and also for those who preferred to appreciate the composition through the life of its composer.

Although the Academy is young, it has contributed noticeably to the lives of the students who have availed themselves of its rich offering. As the organization grows it will be able to accumulate its own representative collection of classical music which will be at the disposal of its members. In this way the club will contribute most effectively to the liberally educated man.

Officers: M. James, Vice President, J. Genoni, Treasurer, J. Grady, President, R. Guerrera, Secretary.

The Guild was organized in November of 1958 under the guidance of Mr. Stephen J. O'Brien, to help students interested in law as a profession. Since its inception the club has sponsored lectures by Professor Ball of Villanova Law School, Dean Rostow of Yale Law School, and Miles McDonald, New York State Supreme Court Justice. In addition to talks by these distinguished men, the Guild also featured former graduates, who are now members of the bar, as speakers.

One of the main accomplishments of the organization has been the establishment of the Guild library of catalogues from all the law schools approved by the U. S. Bar Association. Although the Guild is the newest of the extra-curricular activities on the campus, it is a most helpful one to a large number of the student body.

French Club

The French Club has for its purpose the furtherance of the French language, and the appreciation of the contributions of France to Western cultures. At the bi-weekly meetings student papers, guest speakers, illustrated lectures, and moving pictures were featured. Besides these activities, the Club also sponsored a contest on French culture and civilization for high school students of the area, and it also featured an annual French Night on campus. Although the Club is now in the process of revitalization, its contribution to the activities of Fairfield have been considerable.

Veterans Club

Executive Committee: F. Furey, T. Morrison, B. Boland, L. Laitres

Since its inception the Veterans Club has periodically distinguished itself among the undergraduate organizations at Fairfield University. It is composed of veterans of both World War II and the Korean War, and also students who were separated honorably from the service outside these two conflicts.

The Vet's Club has been responsible for the establishment of post-carnival parties which have now been permanently integrated into the annual Mid-Winter Carnival weekend. Proceeds from the social functions of the organization have during the past years been used for the worthy contributions to the Shadowbrook Fund, and the establishment of a scholarship fund for veterans. The association has also contributed to the intellectual advancement of the undergraduate student through its procurement and distribution of literature to aid in the understanding of the philosophies which are diametrical to the tenets of democracy, and thereby be better able to defend it against them. Although primarily social in nature, this organization has contributed considerably to the success of the undergraduate activities at Fairfield.

Athletic Association

Although this is one of the smallest organizations on the campus, it is none the less one of the most active. Its chief task is that of assisting Fr. Lyons in his capacity as athletic director. The association fulfills this function in many ways, chief among which are the announcing of the home basketball games, supervising of the intramural program, and keeping statistics for all the University's baseball and basketball games. Another important task of this organization is the managing of the college's annual High School Invitational Track Meet.

A most important group within the Association is the University Cheer Leaders. Led by Jay Simpson the septet has been most influential in keeping the spirit of the University keen, and furthering the traditions of Fairfield.

Dante

Academy

The students of Italian language and culture had one of their major goals realized during 1958-59 with the successful formation on campus of the Dante Academy. This academy is a serious student seminar devoted to the study of one of the greatest literary masterpieces of all time, "The Divine Comedy." Under the well versed tutelage of Father Leeber, a careful program of study was undertaken by the members which consisted of analyzing this great work from the aspect of theology, philosophy, and history, and exploring the influential factors that prompted the author to write it.

Each member of the club was required to deliver a talk on a separate canto of this literary classic, in an attempt to clarify the author's meaning with regard to different sections, and to answer any question that arose on that section from his fellow members. Besides the standard texts which were imported, phonograph records and different manuscripts were also used. In addition the Academy sponsored lectures by qualified guest speakers, who contributed considerably to the organization's goals. The Dante Academy is an example of what can be accomplished by college students devoted to the pursuit of classical knowledge of the ages.

That quality of college life referred to as the fraternal spirit, is fostered at Fairfield by the area clubs. One of the largest and most active of these organizations is the Bridgeport Area Club headed by Bob O'Neil. Under his direction the brethren from Bridgeport and its vicinity, undertook its most ambitious schedule of activities. In addition to sponsoring the annual Glee Club concert in Bridgeport to raise funds to provide scholarships for students from that city, the Club also supplied plenty of social activities for its contingent. Foremost among these were the Christmas and Spring Dances, and the pre-Lenten Stag. The Club also presented a trophy to the most valuable player in the annual University of Bridgeport-Fairfield basketball game. With the arrival of May, the Club brought down the curtain on one of the most memorable and active years of the organization.

Metropolitan Area Club

The Metropolitan Club, the largest undergraduate regional club at Fairfield, both in membership and geographical area, was composed of approximately one hundred and twenty-five members during the 1958-59 academic year. This group of men insured the overwhelming success of the activities sponsored by the Club throughout the New York metropolitan area. It began its social functions with the traditional Undergraduate-Frosh Stag at the New Yorker in September. This was followed by a very successful Harvest Hop on Long Island in November, and an equally enjoyable Thanksgiving Dance at the Tropical Acres in Yonkers.

Highlighting the Christmas vacation, the Club sponsored the annual Christmas Dance at the Governor Clinton Hotel in New York City. During the spring semester, the members were filled with new vitality as the Club endeavored to maintain its prominent social position on the campus by sponsoring informal dances over the long holiday weekends. The hard work and industry of the Club's officers was climaxed in the annual picnic, the "finis" of the organization's social activities for the academic year.

Waterbury Area Club

The Waterbury Club of Fairfield University celebrated the tenth anniversary of its inception during the 1958-59 academic year. The spirit and drive of the men from the "brass city" is equally well known on campus as in their home town. This energy, combined with the excellence of the Fairfield University Glee Club, is responsible for the continued success of the annual concerts sponsored by the Club in Waterbury.

It is the primary aim of the Club to provide scholarships for deserving students from Waterbury to Fairfield University. The establishment of this scholarship fund is made possible by the proceeds from the Glee Club Concert, the annual card party, and various other fund raising functions. Secondly the organization attempts to provide a dynamic social schedule for its members. This it fulfilled by sponsoring regular informal dances, and a Christmas party, spring picnic, autumn hayride, and senior farewell dance.

In order that the men from New Jersey could more easily establish permanent friendships and have an organized outlet for their social activities, a group of men from this state founded three years ago their own area club. Through the leadership and organizational ability of the association's officers the club has increased its membership from the original fifteen to the present seventy-five members. The club has been most active in attracting competent students from New Jersey to Fairfield University, and has provided many outstanding social activities for its members, with the annual Christmas Dance and Beach Party being noteworthy examples.

Indeed the New Jersey Area Club will greatly prosper from the activities and traditions started by its members of the class of 1959.

The area club that represents the Fairfield students from the state capital provides its members with a wide variety of activities, both spiritual and social. Although the Club's main objective is to raise funds from sponsoring the annual Glee Club concert in Bushnell Auditorium and thereby granting a scholarship to a needy student from the Hartford area, the Club also provides a medium of unifying the Fairfield students from the "insurance city." In addition to presenting the University Glee Club, the organization in the 1958-59 academic year sponsored Father-Son Communion Breakfasts and the annual Thanksgiving Party, New Year's Eve and Spring Dances. This happy blend of activities has given its members a deep consciousness of the generosity and sociableness that are an intimate part of a true Fairfield man.

The New Haven Area Club was founded in 1950 by a small group of students from the New Haven Area. Since that time the Club has developed through hard work and diligence, and is today one of the largest, most financially sound organizations on the campus. Its prime objective is to offer the students from the New Haven area many and varied activities which can be planned and carried out both at Fairfield and in New Haven.

During the academic year three major social events were planned by the officers of the Club. The annual Thanksgiving Dance was held Thanksgiving evening at one of New Haven's finest fraternal clubs. On New Year's Eve the Club sponsored the largest intercollegiate dance in the New Haven area at the St. Elmo Society at Yale University. The social activities came to an end on May 13, the feast of St. Robert Bellarmine, with the holding of the annual picnic at Lighthouse Point, and was the scene of much singing, ball playing, and merry-making by the jovial group from New Haven.

The Valley Club

Just prior to the arrival of the class of 1959 at Fairfield four years ago, the area from which this club owes its membership, was heavily ravaged by the disastrous floods of 1955. In a fashion similar to that in which the Valley has recovered to assume a more successful life, the Valley Club during the past four years has had a rapid increase in membership, and during 1958-59 experienced one of its most successful seasons.

To open the scholastic year a very enjoyable social was given the frosh by their big brothers from the Valley. The 1958 Christmas season heralded the first Christmas Dance sponsored by this club, and this affair was the social climax for the fall semester. In following the tradition of it being the first area club to sponsor the Glee Club in a concert, the Club presented this excellent musical organization in a March concert, the proceeds of which, as in the past, helped pay the tuition of a deserving member of the class of 1963.

United by inhabitation of that section of Connecticut which lies along the river beds of the Naugatuck and Housatonic Rivers, the members of the Valley Club have formed a strong fraternal bond which will be evidenced when they assume their roles as leaders of their communities.

Norwalk Area Club

Back in the dark ages when dorms were something that other schools had and we didn't, the local area clubs were left with the task of filling the gap that existed in the social lives of some of the students. Now that the "day-hops" are becoming a smaller and smaller group, and the on campus clubs are growing in size and number, there appears to be little future left for the local organization. Contrary to the prevailing trend, however, the Norwalk Area Club of Fairfield University has managed to exist and even to show signs of growth.

Relying on the commuting students of Norwalk, Westport, Wilton, Darien, and Rowayton, for its membership, the club has a total of about thirty-five collegians. It has many activities to offer but perhaps the best known are its stellar stag parties held in the local "K. of C." hall in Norwalk. Here, amids the stout friendships started by day in school, relaxation and competition cement and solidify ties which last well beyond the college days.

Though its main function is to provide wholesome fun for its members, the spiritual side of college life is not forgotten. Holding Communion breakfasts as often as possible has long been one of the prime objectives of this club. The spirit of this organization is accurately stated in the sentence: in any organization here or in years to come, the only limitations we must face are the ones we set for ourselves. . . .

Bay State Area Club

In order that the Fairfield men from Massachusetts, might get to know each other better and create a strong, spirited organization, the Bay State Area Club was founded three years ago. Since that time, through an extensive recruiting program, it has increased its membership from the original fifteen to the present sixty members.

The Club sponsors numerous social functions throughout the Commonwealth for its members. Among the most noteworthy activities held during this past year, were the summer beach party on Cape Cod, the Christmas Dance held at the Hillcrest Country Club in Leicester, and the Easter Hop given at the Hotel Kimball in Springfield. Under the leadership of its spirited president, Ray Callahan, the club conducted an extensive campaign to attract the reputable men of the Commonwealth to Fairfield, and thereby save them from the woes of "apple sauce" or joining those "infamous birds of prey."

Darryln Powers, Dogwood Festival Queen

JUNIOR WEEK

Class of '59

The Dogwood Festival, as the junior weekend has come to be known, was one of the biggest and most enjoyable social events in the college's history. Under the excellent and untiring direction of Jack Toal, its general chairman, the events of the weekend began with a most spirited and enjoyable stag party on Thursday night at the Ukrainian Hall. On Friday evening the Longshore Country Club was the scene of the most prominent event of the 1958 Festival: the Junior Promenade. The couples danced to the melodious music of Billy Butterfield Orchestra, the first big name band to perform at a Fairfield weekend. A highlight of the formal was the crowning of the Queen of the Dogwood Festival, Darryln Powers, who reigned over the remaining Festival activities. After the prom the gaiety and fun of the weekend was continued at the Junior Class Post-Prom Party at Woodland Grove.

Saturday was a most active day with the Post-Prom Party in the early morning hours and an informal picnic soon following in the afternoon at Sherwood Island. That evening the people partaking in the Festival were treated to an outstanding thespian production, namely the Dramatic Society's presentation of "Time Limit" at the Shakespeare Festival Theater in Stratford. This stellar performance was followed by a most enjoyable party chairmaned by Mike McDonnell. A variety show staged by Charlie McCann on Sunday afternoon in Gonzaga Auditorium brought the 1958 Dogwood Festival to a close.

The Junior Weekend of 1958 was, by unanimous agreement, a tremendous success. It is now a memory that will linger long and happily in the minds of the class of 1959.

Mid-Winter Carnival

Committee

"On with the dance, let joy be unconfined
No sleep till dawn, when youth and pleasure meet."

No sleep for three days, was more the case, Lord Byron, but unconfined joy there was during that best of all "weekends," the 1959 Mid-Winter Carnival. The class of 1959 had done it again. Real pro . . . are the only apt words to describe it, both the staging of each event, and the talent featured.

Friday evening at the formal dance, the sounds of the Elgart Orchestra set the pace and initiated the state of perpetual motion of the whole weekend. The dancers stopped but once, to applaud the lovely Carnival Queen, Judy Skelly, and the four beautiful girls of her court. At 1:00 A.M., though the melody from the imaginatively decorated bandstand was "Good Night Sweetheart," the carnival spirit did not dim. Then the couples took leave of the Ritz to regal themselves with refreshments (solid and otherwise) and dance at one of the three post-prom parties. These swinging affairs terminated in the wee hours of the morning, but the party fever was only then on the ascent, and festivities broke out anew at the hostelries in the charter of Fairfield men.

And so it went on through Saturday: from the beer-soaked, applause-filled Jazz Concert (incidentally the greatest Fairfield has ever seen, due to the Kai Winding and the Pennsylvania Six-Pence) to the post concert parties, and the pre-dance cocktail parties. Then there was the informal dance with the surprise attraction of six riotously dressed, hairy-legged "belles" vying for the title of "Informal Queen." The music at the informal was again supplied by the terrifically versatile Six-Pence. You guessed it . . . house parties followed.

The important feature of the weekend was the 11:00 A.M. Mass Sunday morning in Loyola Chapel, and the Communion Breakfast which followed. The capacity attendance at these two events was a fitting example of the true Christian spirit which should permeate a college weekend. Then on Sunday afternoon the Carnival couples attended the Glee Club Concert in Gonzaga Auditorium. The closing bars of the Alma Mater brought to an end the frantic, fun filled forty-six hours; all that remained was to see the date to the station or home, fall back to the pad, and sleep.

Varsity Basketball

It was with high hopes that the Stags entered the '58-59 court season. It was a strange season which saw the Fairfield five twice fall into extended losing streaks, but recovering from their misfortunes to win 6 out of their last 8 games to finish the season with a creditable .500 record of 11 wins and 11 losses.

The dream which began with co-captain Ed Diskowski racking 16 and 27 points in two easy wins over Seton Hall (Paterson) and Hunter, was shattered when the Stags lost a 72-70 heartbreaker to Yeshiva in a Tri-State game. Harry Hyra and Art Crawford paced a late drive that whittled a 67-53 deficit to 68-66 with one minute left in the game.

STAGS

McGowan controls the tap.

In the next outing the Stags played the strong Providence club which was to become the Cinderella team of the NIT. The highly touted Providence defense proved that it deserved its second place national rating in this department by holding the Stags to 11 points in the first half. The Friars then rolled on to an easy 64-32 win, despite Ed Diskowski's 19 points. Diskowski's 24 points against Boston College was not enough to overcome an early 20-10 Eagle lead as BC held on to pick up a 66-56 win.

The Stags got back on the right road in their next outing by trouncing Kings Point 82-54 in a Tri-State contest, but then lost the way as they ran into a powerful Iona club that jumped off to a quick 16-2 lead and then coasted to an easy 99-67 victory. The Gaels hit an excellent 56% of their floor shots in this game and dominated the boards throughout.

The Fairfield five found the way again as they trounced their arch rivals from Bridgeport by a convincing 88-71 margin and then swept on to another win as they raced past New Haven State Teachers College 73-53.

The young winning streak was crushed ruthlessly by St. Peter's and Bill Smith in a contest at the Jersey City Armory: the Peacocks rolling to a fast shooting 106-81 victory.

Assumption was fought on even terms for the entire game, Harry Hyra's lead basket at 59-58 was a deception to the 62-63 final count. Artie Crawford's 28 rebounds and 17 points and Joel Cherrytree's 18 points made them the Stags' leading players in this contest.

Fairleigh-Dickinson, leading the Tri-State League, was battled evenly also, but the 70-70 tie broke the wrong way, nullifying Hyra's 18 and McGowan's 17. After a long trip to Vermont to play St. Michaels where the small-college powerhouse stopped the Stags by a 93-73, the Stags returned to the Brass Center to face a strong Adelphi five.

McGowan scores against U.B.

A revamped line-up faced the tenth ranked small college five and almost came up with a startling upset as they outscored the Panthers from the floor, but lost the game on the foul line, 74-72. Joel Cherrytree lead the Stags with 19 points, Ed Diskowski 15 and Harry Hyra had 13 points.

The new team then raced to five straight victories. Tom O'Brien got his second chance to start and carried away 24 points: dependable Diskowski (20), Hyra (19) and Crawford (18) assured an 89-82 victory over Rider. Hyra and Cherrytree both scored 22 against Brooklyn College aided by Diskowski (19) and Crawford (18) to stomp away 98-82. A.I.C. tried to hold the Stags even for eight minutes, but a 37-28 spurt sent Fairfield toward an 98-90 final tally. Diskowski with 25, Crawford with 21 and O'Brien with 19 led the way.

Then, in order to break New Britain's winning streak of eight games, Harry Hyra secured the third 98 point Fairfield total with a record shattering total of 37 points, while Joel Cherrytree hit for 23 points.

Two foul shots in the last 9 seconds by Cherrytree were nullified as Bridgeport's Ed Wysocki's last second shot gave the Purple Knights a thrilling 86-84 victory. In a hard fought game, the Stags won a convincing 92-84 win over Siena as Ed Diskowski scored 25 points. Despite a brilliant 27 point effort by Diskowski which made him the highest scorer in Fairfield history, the Stags lost their last game to Upsala 86-64.

For their fine play Ed Diskowski and Joel Cherrytree were named to the Tri-State All Star team, Ed making the first team and Joel the second. Ed Diskowski smashed Bobby Gerwein's overall scoring record as he scored 1,063 points for his career total and Harry Hyra broke the single game record with 37 points against New Britain. All in all it was an exciting season, filled with the ups and downs that make any athletic endeavor so exciting.

Freshman Basketball

Emil Garafalo's '58-'59 edition of the Fairfield Frosh was unquestionably the best. This team after losing a tight game to Fordham early in the season exploded with 14 straight wins to finish their year with a fine 16 and 1 record.

Among their victims were Yale, Iona and a strong Bridgeport squad which twice fell before the Stag onslaught. Records fell frequently as the squad averaged better than 85 points a game.

Devin Doolan and Mike Touhey both tied Frank McGowan's record of 33 points in a single game. Mike Touhey broke the previous scoring record as he averaged a fine 19.3 points per game. Bill Shin broke the Frosh field goal record. John Mullen hit frequently from the left side as well as playing a fine defensive game throughout the season.

It was Bobby Jenkins, however, who held the team together throughout the season. His rebounding, passing and clutch shooting won many of the Frosh games. This was exemplified in the game against Yale when Bobby hit for 22 points from the floor while grabbing 31 rebounds for what is, unofficially, a Frosh record.

Baseball

Captains Caragliano, Toomey and Panessa with Coach Feroleto.

Frank Feroleto assumed a difficult role when he became the head baseball coach last Spring. He brought to his position ability and industry; he applied both diligently. That the team was less than it should have been was no fault of his.

On April 14 Fairfield beat Hartford U., 11-10. Dave Toomey, a fine control pitcher on a thin staff, maintained an 11-2 lead into the last half of the eighth when a triple with the bases loaded turned into a seven run Hartford inning that all but spelled defeat for the Stags. Ed Skinski preserved the victory. Credits went to third baseman Kev Walsh whose two singles drove in three runs, and to Ron Bard for a home run with one on.

Playing in Ebbets Field with major league scouts in the stands, shortstop Jack Redway powered out a triple and a home run—the circuit clout landing in the streets of Brooklyn—to edge out Long Island U. by a 6-5 count. Bart Panessa connected safely twice for the Stags. And by surviving a shaky four run second inning, Dave Toomey gained for himself his second win of the season.

First Row: Rinaldi, Caragliano, Walsh, Lorenzo, Ciminera, Hyra, Pruchnicki. Second Row: Donino, Bruzas, Panessa, O'Brien, Tracy, Loughlin. Third Row: Coach Feroleto, Manager Kenefick, Murray, Toomey, Shea, Panuczak, Wallin, Manager Slayne.

On May 17, given a chance to pitch in order to relieve the burdened staff, Kev Walsh struck out six, gave up 11 hits, and in 8-1/3 innings kept his head above water to win over Rider College, 9-8. Walsh, Redway, and Harry Hyra each had two hits, with Redway smashing a two run triple, and Hyra providing the winning margin in a bases empty homer. It was an upset victory.

Bart Panessa at .300, Redway at .295, and Hyra with .250 led the hitting department. Because of his fine Ebbets Field performance, Jack Redway signed a contract with the Milwaukee Braves.

A spirit of the "team win" pervades the track team. Each member in his event or events helps accomplish this end. The 6 or 7 event man of the past is giving way to the 2 or 3 event man, whereby each member may pursue his special field. Thus in the track team there is the double victory, the thrill of individual accomplishment plus the joy of team victory.

According to Coach Tamashunas his men are all basically quarter-milers and from thence branch off to varied events. This year, by dint of hard work, the members of the team have compiled a truly good track record.

The track team has instilled in its members the spirit of competition and sportsmanship, thus following the idea of educating the whole man.

The team is depending heavily on newcomers Denny Dowd, two years' New York State Public School finalist, John Dowd, Paul Maguire, and Bob Melican. The team is coached by Rev. James Ring, S.J.

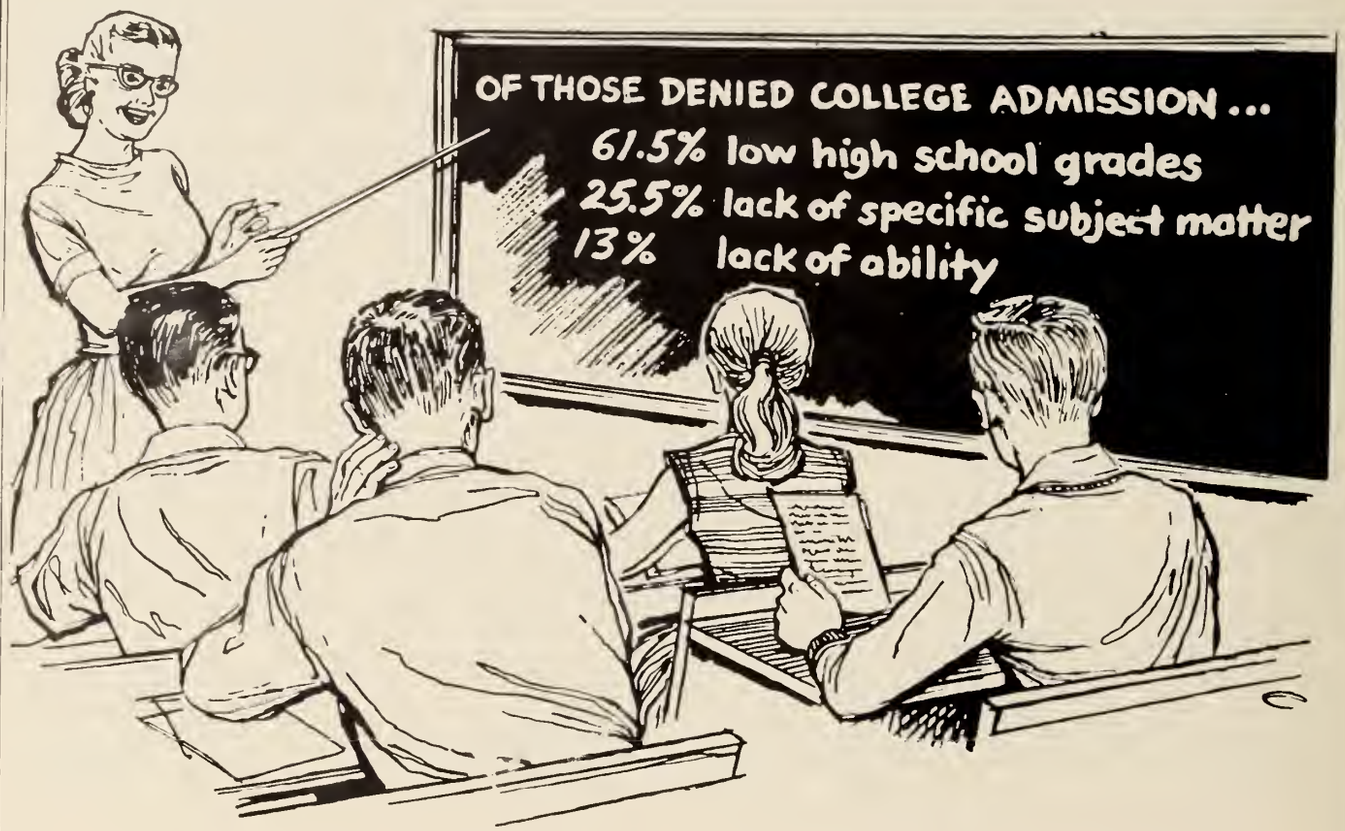
Can your child go to your college?



Every one of us has the hope that his son or daughter may be so well prepared that the admissions officer will say: "Your application is accepted. We will look forward to seeing you in the fall." But sometimes plans go amiss.

We at General Electric have for years been urging youth to aim high, work hard, master the basic subjects, and go on to college.

Recently, we sent a questionnaire to 100 college-admissions officers. We asked: "What are the reasons some high-school students are admitted and others rejected?" The 78 replies we received contained a great unanimity of opinion.

We have summarized those replies in a booklet, Start Planning Now for Your Career; the illustration on this page, taken from the booklet, gives a clue as to its content.

We believe that the alumnus can work for the best interests of his college by sending to that college young people prepared to receive a higher education.

We further believe that our summary of opinions of admissions officers is so persuasively compelling that the boy or girl who reads it must ask himself whether he is choosing his courses wisely and getting high enough marks.

Perhaps with this booklet in hand and supporting its thesis with your own experience, you can help persuade your child, or another child in whom you have an interest, to prepare against the day when an admissions officer will review his record. We invite you to write for a copy (or copies) to Community Relations, General Electric Company, Bridgeport 2, Connecticut.
